

I do not wish to receive unsolicited phone calls from anyone. The Wisconsin no-call list has reduced this annoyance to a miniscule minimum and I couldn't be happier. If I want to be advertised to or solicited I can read it in the paper or in banner ads on-line. It should be up to me to receive it - not an advertiser to invade my life and time. If banks feel they need more access to me they can hire people with all those exorbitant fees they charge and send their staff door to door (with gifts) to invite my business. You are the Federal Communications Commission - you have already caved to giant media ownership - are you now branching out to cover the banking industry too?? Leave the Wisconsin no-call list alone.
